2. Summary of Discussion

The committee reviewed current governance processes and identified the need for improved consistency in documentation and decision tracking.

A structured discussion was held on data quality and how defined processes support more reliable decision-making. It was noted that in fast-paced operational environments, decisions are frequently taken without adequate documentation.

The committee discussed the increasing use of AI systems to support operational decisions. It was agreed that while these systems improve efficiency, they require structured validation and human oversight before outputs are acted upon.
